Entrepreneurship – Supporting Start-ups and Informal Segments within society to create sustainable businesses that create income & employment opportunities.

The fact is that everywhere in the world, SMALL BUSINESSES are the driving force of economic transformation.

In this context, we echo the words of Clem Sunter in regards to job creation in South Africa. He cites the example of South African Mosa Moeketsi as a veritable “pocket of excellence”.

Mosa holds the record as the youngest woman to own her own construction company in South Africa, employing 16 people to construct roads, dig manholes, build low-cost housing and supply plumbing systems. Using Mosa’s model, the “factor of 16” is within reach, says Clem, and we agree:

“ ...set as a target the creation of a supportive environment in which one million new small businesses will be established by 2020, rather than five million new jobs. Guess what: if the goal of one million new small businesses was achieved and they were like Mosa’s one, that would be 16 million extra jobs.”

“My personal passion is to see innovative altruism take place in Africa so global empowerment can engulf us as Africans. I live and breath transformation and strategic planning. I love being at the hub of innovative and global entrepreneurship. I strive for

African growth.” Mosa Moeketsi, LinkedIn: Business Developer, Professional Speaker and CEO
